

YEAR 2 HISTORY READ-ALOUD SUGGESTIONS

As part of the course, you are encouraged to select and read four books to your child(ren), one to go along with each of the four units in the course. It is recommended that you read for at least 20 minutes at the end of each lesson. However, to finish most books by the end of the unit, a longer reading time will be required. Some parents choose to do history lessons twice a week but the read-aloud book more often.

Books on this suggested list are ordered by Jenny Phillips' top picks, with #1 being the most highly recommended in each age category. Most book suggestions include a review by Jenny.

Unit 4: The Story of Edith Cavell

Unit 1 Suggested Read-Aloud Books

All Ages (Grades 1–12)

1. Foo and Ching by Phyllis Ayer Sowers

(Published by The Good and the Beautiful Library)

This delightful story, set in mid-1800s China, sweeps readers along on a memorable journey through geography, culture, tradition, kindness, and the bonds of kinship. As young orphans living in a remote Chinese village, Ching and her brother, Foo, embark on a perilous journey of survival.

2. Daughter of the Mountains by Louise S. Rankin

This fictional Newbery Honor book from 1948 starts in the mountains of Tibet and recounts the adventure of young Momo's journey into India to find her stolen dog, Pempa. The story is engaging and fascinating as well as wholesome and educational. This well-written tale is very highly recommended! Note: Unit 1 covers ancient Asia. This book is set in 19th century Asia, and is a great extension study to ancient Asia.

3. Archimedes and the Door of Science by Jeanne Bendick

This nonfiction book is written in a way that holds the interest of younger readers. Readers learn not only about the ancient Greek mathematician and scientist Archimedes, but they also learn about history and science.

Younger Children Only (Grades 1–4)

1. The Spartan Twins by Lucy Fitch Perkins

This short book is a wholesome, fun story of siblings who live in ancient Greece. Lucy Fitch Perkins is a wonderful writer, and the book has good educational value. The plot is simple and would likely be more interesting to children nine and under. The book is available for free at www.gutenberg.org. Note: Greek mythology is referenced in the book.

Older Children Only (Grades 7+)

1. The Golden Hawks of Genghis Khan by Rita Ritchie

(Published by The Good and the Beautiful Library)

Young Jalair yearns to recover the Golden Hawks that were stolen from his father and become their master, but his grandfather has different plans for his future. Jalair escapes to the land of the Mongols in search of his father's hawks. Adventure is combined with a complex plot in this historical novel set during the time of the Mongol Empire. This book is a wonderful literary gem that is woven with great messages.

Unit 2 Suggested Read-Aloud Books

All Ages (Grades 1–12)

1. The Falcon of Eric the Red by Catherine Cate Coblentz

(Published by The Good and the Beautiful Library)

Full of adventure, kindness, friendship, and hope, The Falcon of Eric the Red features Vikings, animal husbandry, and tales inspired by the earliest European visitors to North America. Jon's life is a good one. After all, his charge is to train hunting falcons for Eric the Red in Greenland. The arrival of a pair of merchant ships changes the course of his life. He soon finds himself on an expedition to Vineland, a mysterious new land found in the west, with his friends and one of the king's own falcons.

2. Beorn the Proud by Madeleine Polland

In this fictional story, a young Christian woman named Ness is captured by Vikings on the Irish coast. Ness' faith helps sustain her during her captivity. This book is very engaging and relates powerful messages about reliance on God, courage, patience, and avoiding greed for power and wealth. The book is a fairly easy read that should be enjoyed even by reluctant readers. This book does not have as high of an educational value as other books on this list, as the focus is more on the plot and characters than the historical time period.

3. The Corn Grows Ripe by Dorothy Rhoads

This engaging, beautifully written book gives good insight into the ancient Mayan culture. The book also teaches great lessons as a lazy boy learns how to face overwhelming challenges with perseverance and experiences the rewards of hard work.

4. Raiders from the Sea by Lois Walfrid Johnson

In this fictional story, a Christian brother and sister from Ireland are captured by Vikings. A strong emphasis is placed on faith in God. This book does not have as high of an educational value as other books on this list, as the focus is more on the plot and characters than the historical time period. The literary merit is fair. This is part of a five-book series (Viking Quest Series). Each book leaves you hanging. If you start the series, you will likely want to finish all five books.

Younger Children Only (Grades 1–4)

1. Viking Adventure by Clyde Robert Bulla

Even though this is only a Level 3 reading level, I found this book interesting and full of educational value. This would be a good book for reluctant readers. The writing is good but easy; the story is exciting, and the educational value is high.

Intermediate Ages and Older (Grades 5–12)

1. Black Fox of Lorne by Marguerite de Angeli

This wonderful Newbery Honor novel is out of print but worth finding if you can. The plot is engaging, and the writing has very high literary, moral, and educational value. In the 10th century, two Viking twins shipwreck on the Scottish coast. When one of the twins finds himself in the hands of enemies, a series of adventures are set in motion. This wholesome book contains messages about faith, Christianity, forgiveness, mercy, loyalty, and strong family bonds.

2. Ernest Shackleton: Going South by Janet Bengé and Geoff Bengé

This book tells the remarkable, true story of Ernest Shackleton and his famous Antarctic expeditions in the early 1900s. I enjoyed learning more about this good man and the Heroic Age of Antarctic Exploration. Ernest Shackleton is not discussed in the history course. This book would make a good extension to Unit 2, which covers other explorers.

Older Children Only (Grades 7+)

1. The King's Fifth by Scott O'Dell

This book tells a fictional, engaging story that takes place in the Age of Exploration. Esteban de Sandoval, a young mapmaker in the mid-1500s, is on trial for withholding “the king’s fifth” of the gold he found and allegedly has hidden. The book switches back and forth between the current day (as Esteban stands trial) and his journey through the mythical seven cities, supposedly filled with gold. This enveloping, suspenseful story gives a look at the time of early exploration and will make readers think twice about setting their hearts on riches. Children under 12 will most likely not understand the symbolism nor the complex plot. The cover of this book may not be exciting or interesting, but the book is very engaging, although it is a challenging read!

Unit 3 Suggested Read-Aloud Books

All Ages (Grades 1–12)

1. The Mooring Tree by Gertrude Robinson
(Published by The Good and the Beautiful Library)

Silas Ware and his son, Jason, had planned to sail to the New World together to claim the land granted to them in the Jamestown settlement. But when his father is wrongfully imprisoned, young Jason must embark upon the long and lonely journey without him. Upon arrival, the settlers are shocked to find Jamestown mysteriously deserted! While the others lose all hope, Jason remains steadfast. With help from some new friends, Jason is determined to build the life that he and his father dreamed of, hopeful that they will one day be reunited.

2. Peter and the Pilgrims by Louise A. Vernon

Louise A. Vernon is a great writer of historical fiction for youth. In this book Vernon creates a plot so captivating that readers hardly realize just how much they are learning about history. The book works great as a read-aloud for the whole family, young and old. As an adult I thoroughly enjoyed this book and was surprised about how much historical knowledge I gained. This will be a must-read book for all of my children. The back cover reads: “Peter Cook has a good life as a bound boy. Although a youth who has to do hard labor, he is treated like a son by his master. Everything changes the day that Peter discovers his master has died of the dreaded disease, the black plague. Because Peter touched the corpse, he is thrown out of the great house and left on his own.”

3. Landing of the Pilgrims by James Daugherty

Award-winning author James Daugherty is a fantastic writer. In this work of historical fiction, Daugherty uses a rich vocabulary and has a way of writing that makes the content interesting and easy to understand for younger children while also being engaging for older children. Daugherty does a great job of describing the hard work and strong faith of the pilgrims. I highly recommend this book!

4. Stories of the Pilgrims by Margaret B. Pumphrey

Originally published in 1910, this wonderful book gives vignettes of pilgrim life starting from the early days in Scrooby, England. The writing is beautiful. The stories are told from the point of view of children and are interesting. However, because the writing is elevated and there are many different short stories, some children may tire of the subject matter before the entire book is read, or they may struggle with long periods of reading this book. I suggest just reading a select number of stories from the book—or reading the stories here and there over an extended period of time. There are several versions of the book. A quick study of the different versions shows that they are all very similar. Some go by the title Pilgrim Stories.

Younger Children Only (Grades 1–4)

1. William Bradford: Pilgrim Boy by Bradford Smith

The engaging style of writing will pull even young readers into the story of William Bradford, who becomes a Separatist and travels with the Pilgrims to the New World where he becomes governor of Plymouth Plantation. This book, which focuses mostly on Bradford’s childhood, is a wonderful tool to make history come alive for children. However, because it is written for a lower-level reader, it might not be as interesting for children over 12 years old.

2. Squanto, Friend of the Pilgrims by Clyde Robert Bulla

This short chapter book, based on the true story of Squanto, is written at a level for younger readers, yet it is still engaging for all ages. I personally feel the white men of that era were represented accurately: there were great and kind white men, but there were also some white men who were cruel. Be aware that there are sad parts in the book, although the author does a great job of showing Squanto's enduring spirit. Children will learn much about the historical time period.

Intermediate Ages and Older (Grades 5–12)

1. The Iron Peacock by Mary Stetson Clarke

This historical fiction novel, published in 1966, is a lesser-known but fantastic book. While 16-year-old Joanna and her father are sailing from England to Boston in 1650, her father dies on the ship, leaving her orphaned. Joanna is forced to become an indentured servant working for the master of the Iron Works in Saugus, Massachusetts. This book strives to give an accurate picture of what it was like to be an indentured servant in Colonial America. Positive messages include finding contentment in any situation, courage, and kindness. Parents should be aware that there is a slight bit of romance in this book. However, it is very pure and wholesome, and there is not even any kissing. I really loved this book. Note: If this book is unavailable on Amazon.com, try Sonlight.com.

2. Calico Bush by Rachel Field

Originally published in 1931, this Newbery Honor book is a fantastic and worthwhile read. Orphaned in a strange country, French girl Marguerite is forced to become an indentured servant. Readers learn much about life in the mid-1700s in Maine as they follow Marguerite's story of strength, hard work, endurance, courage, and kindness. The first couple of chapters are a little difficult to get into, but don't give up because the book quickly becomes intriguing. I loved the description in the book and the insights into human life. I also gained a lot of knowledge from the book. This one is highly recommended!

3. In the Reign of Terror: A Story of the French Revolution by G.A. Henty

The official description reads: "Return to the tumultuous days of the French Revolution with this captivating tale of adventure and courage. Join Harry Sandwith, a young Englishman, as he accepts a job as a companion to the sons of a French marquis. Follow Harry and his aristocratic friends as they're swept from their idyllic life at a country estate to the riotous streets of Paris and the very gates of the Bastille. Can Harry rescue the marquis' family from imprisonment and certain death at the hands of the merciless mob?" G.A. Henty is known for his fantastic historical novels, and this one does not disappoint. It is one of my favorites from this author. The writing is elevated and would likely be enjoyed as a read-aloud for ages 11 and older. The French Revolution is not taught in the course book; it is included in the Grades 10–12 Student Explorer.

4. William Penn: Liberty and Justice for All by Janet Bengé and Geoff Bengé

Janet and Geoff Bengé really have a talent for making history come alive through their fictionalized biographies. William Penn is an interesting and inspiring story packed with educational insights. William Penn was a man with many admirable character traits—a man worthy of study. I have read several books in the Heroes of History series, and I have liked all of them.

5. Once Upon a Time: The Way America Was by Eric Sloane

This 64-page book is overflowing with educational value. The information is fascinating and the writing fantastic. Readers learn about the principles of frugality, home, and hard work in early America. I highly recommend this wonderful book for ages 10 and up. It would make a great family read-aloud for older children, as it is likely to spark some great discussions.

6. Carry On, Mr. Bowditch by Jean Lee Latham

This Newbery Award-winning fictionalized biography tells the true story of Nathaniel Bowditch, an American mathematician, astronomer, and navigation expert. "Nat" faces hardships as a young boy and is forced into an apprenticeship, but he remains cheerful and perseverant as he educates himself until he achieves his dreams. This inspiring story is skillfully written yet easy to read, with great descriptive language and imagery.

7. William Bradford: Plymouth's Rock by Janet Benge and Geoff Benge

This is another great book by Janet and Geoff Benge. This historical fiction tells the story of William Bradford, who came to America on the Mayflower and showed steadfast leadership that blessed the Plymouth Colony. The book would likely be enjoyed best by children ages 12 and older.

Unit 4 Suggested Read-Aloud Books

All Ages (Grades 1–12)

1. The Story of Edith Cavell by Iris Vinton

(Published by The Good and the Beautiful Library)

Beautifully written and based on the life of the real, inspiring heroine, The Story of Edith Cavell sweeps readers through Edith's character-building childhood and into World War I, as she creates and operates Belgium's first school of nursing despite the country being ruthlessly occupied. Edith becomes a key figure in the dangerous Belgian Underground, and is subsequently caught and tried for high treason.

2. Esperanza Rising by Pam Muñoz Ryan

Written in 2000, this book has won several awards. I found no objectionable language or content. The story is beautiful and very engaging. Esperanza has a life of wealth and comfort on her family's ranch in Mexico. But when tragedy shatters Esperanza's world during the Great Depression, she and her family are forced to flee to California and settle in a camp for Mexican farm workers. This story is packed with educational value about the Great Depression and has uplifting messages about family, loyalty, hard work, attitude, gratitude, enduring trials, friendship, honesty, and kindness.

3. Anna's Fight for Hope: The Great Depression by JoAnn A. Grote

If you are looking for a wholesome, engaging book that takes place during the Great Depression, this is a great option. It's a sweet and engaging story. The official description reads: "Follow the fictional story of Anna Harrington to see how this time of upheaval affected a 12-year-old girl who saw her friends and acquaintances devastated by economic events . . . This very personal story shows the beauty of friendship while at the same time teaching important lessons of Christian faith and American history." The book is available as a Kindle version.

Intermediate Ages and Older (Grades 5–12)

1. A Cup of Cold Water: The Compassion of Nurse Edith Cavell by Christine Farenhorst

This book tells the true story of the faithful, courageous British nurse Edith Cavell during World War I. Caught in the turmoil of the war while working in Belgium, Edith shows tremendous faith, courage, and selflessness as she helps others, even though she is surrounded by spies. The first half of the book is a little more slowly paced, but beautifully written. The second half is much more engaging.

Older Children Only (Grades 7+)

1. The Forgotten Founding Father by Joshua Kendall

This book gets five out of five stars from me in each category: moral merit, literary merit, and educational value. It would be a very challenging read, however, and require daily reading of 40+ minutes to finish by the end of the unit. With skillful and elegant writing, Joshua Kendall tells the lesser-known, but deeply inspiring, story of Noah Webster. This is a wonderfully challenging, true biography, not a fictionalized biography. This worthwhile read is packed with the highest moral, literary, and educational value, making it one of the best books for this unit, in my opinion.
