

A WOLF in the NORTH WOODS

By Heather Horn

THE GOOD AND THE BEAUTIFUL LIBRARY

CHAPTER 3

Pups Come Out

The pups are now four weeks old. Look how fast they have grown!

Beth and Will and the rest of the pups spent two months in Mom's tummy and one more month in the den.

Their den is safe, but it is time to see outside and look at the world around them.

Will gets up and takes a step out of the warm den. He sees the sun shining on the trees.

Beth steps out with Will. It is spring, and the land is waking up from the long winter.

The white snow has melted, and the trees are budding. The grass is soft on the pups' paws.

It is not long till Mom sees two of her pups are missing. She steps out from the den.
The rest of the pups come too.
There is so much for the small pups
to see and smell.

Mom is close. Dad comes close to the pups too. If a bear sees them, the pups are at risk.

Dad keeps a lookout, and the small pups put each nose to the sky. Their ears perk up, and their noses wiggle. What is that?

They can smell now! The fresh breeze and green grass smell so sweet!

A WOLF in the NORTH WOODS

Life in the North Woods is full of surprises, danger, work, and best of all: adventure! Young wolf pups, Will and Beth, discover the skills of hunting and protecting as well as the love of family and nature. Follow the wolf siblings through the North Woods as they grow from newborn pups to helpful members of the pack.

The Good AND THE Beautiful
goodandbeautiful.com

ISBN 978-1-951097-34-9
5 0699 >

9 781951 097349

SKU 1511

ANIMAL ADVENTURES

A TIGER in the TALL GRASS

By Heather Horn

THE GOOD AND THE BEAUTIFUL LIBRARY

CHAPTER 3

The Water Hole

The cub siblings are two weeks old now. Kash opens his sky-blue eyes.

He does not see well yet, and he stumbles over the top of his sisters.

He tumbles over his sisters again when it is time to eat. He is not strong yet, but he will be soon.

Reva and Lata have blue eyes too. All of their eyes will turn golden like their mother's eyes as the cubs grow.

It is getting late in the day, and the cubs are getting sleepy.

Tara is glad.
Tonight she must go out to find food for herself.
She will stay close and listen for danger.

First, she stops to get a drink at the water hole. She laps up water and then lifts her head to look out over the dark land.
Shhh, what does she see?

Look closely. Do you see her glowing eyes? The lenses in her eyes let in lots of light so she can see better in the dark.

What does she hear?

Footsteps trip-trap down the path. What could it be? It is a group of deer getting a drink.

She ducks down and stays out of sight. She creeps low in the brush so the deer do not see her coming.

Pounce! Tara jumps out and dashes down to the water. Her tail sways back and forth as she runs. It helps her keep her balance.

Three deer lift their heads and leap away, but the last deer does not hear Tara coming. She is thankful for the deer.

With her belly full, Tara returns to her cubs.

A TIGER in the TALL GRASS

Adventure is always a step away for young tiger cubs Kash, Reva, and Lata. Their curiosity keeps their mother, Tara, on her feet! What will the cubs discover as they explore the tall grass, splash in the water, and wander a little too far from their mother? Follow the tiger cubs as they escape danger and learn to hunt in the tall grasses of India.

A PANDA
in the BAMBOO FOREST

By Heather Horn

THE GOOD AND THE BEAUTIFUL LIBRARY

CHAPTER 4

Playtime

Each day Ming grows stronger and bigger. Over the past three months, he has become more playful too.

There are no other cubs for him to play with, so he plays with his mother.

He loves to climb! He climbs up Chun's arm and onto her belly.

Hold on, Ming!

Chun is on the move. Ming clings to his mother as she walks along a thin path in the thick forest. It is time for Ming to eat bamboo too. She takes him to a fresh clump of shoots.

Playfully, Ming slides down his mother's back and begins climbing a young tree. Its branch bobs up and down as Ming steps along it.

Don't fall, Ming!

Oh no! His hind foot slips, but he grabs the branch with his front paws.

It is time for Ming to come down. Chun reaches up to help him. Then she plops him into a pile of leaves.

The first thing for Ming to know about eating bamboo is how to bite the long bamboo pole with his front teeth. His mother shows him. She picks up one and bites it.

Her strong teeth and jaw split the bamboo, and Chun pulls it apart down the middle. Then she peels the green outer layer and eats the inside.

She chews and waits as Ming finds a stick and gives it a try. He shows his playful side and rolls onto his back while biting the stick.

A PANDA in the BAMBOO FOREST

In the bamboo forests of China, there lives a giant panda named Chun and her little cub, Ming. Winter is coming, and Ming and Chun must leave their home high in the mountains for warmer parts of the forest. Come explore the world of Chun and Ming as they migrate down the mountain, meeting new friends and having adventures.

The Good AND THE Beautiful

goodandbeautiful.com

9 781957 561646

SKU 1511.4

PUFFIN

on the

ROCKY COAST

By Heather Horn

THE GOOD AND THE BEAUTIFUL LIBRARY

CHAPTER 2

Coming Home

Poppy is excited to get home to the rocky coast.

She spots Chip in the flock,
and they fly home together.
Chip sees the rocky cliffs ahead. It is the big island called Iceland.

It is April on the rocky coast of Iceland. The snow has melted. Patches of grass are popping up in the cracks between the rocks.

Poppy and Chip are some of the first puffins to land on the empty coast, but it will not be empty for long!

Soon the silent island will be filled with more than a million
pairs of puffins!
Here come more flocks of puffins.

Chip and Poppy are happy to be home. They rub their bills together. "Billing" is how puffins greet each other. They look around and see the coast filling up with black-and-white puffins.

God gave all the puffins an instinct that helps them find the same rocky coast every spring. They even know which burrow is theirs.

Each puffin pair has a big task ahead of them. They must claim their burrow before another puffin pair does.

A PUFFIN on the ROCKY COAST

Every winter, puffins cross the harsh, frigid water and make their way to the rocky coast, where they are greeted by thousands of other puffins. Somehow in the massive colony of puffins, Poppy and Chip reunite each spring. Follow the adventures of this puffin pair as they build their nest, care for their egg, search for food, and teach their new little puffling how to survive on the rocky coast.

ANIMAL
ADVENTURES

A JOEY from DOWN UNDER

By Heather Horn

THE GOOD AND THE BEAUTIFUL LIBRARY

CHAPTER 1

Here Comes the Mob

It is dusk as the sun sets over the bush of Australia. Many strange-looking animals live in the land Down Under.

Here comes an odd-looking bunch now. It's a mob of kangaroos jumping in from the west. This mob has about twenty kangaroos, or roos for short. Some mobs can have more than one hundred roos!

They spread out to graze in the tall grass for the evening. Near the back of the mob is a female named Ruby. She bends down to take a bite of grass.

There is not much water in the hot, dry land, so kangaroos like Ruby get water from the grass they eat.

Sweeping her long bottom teeth across the blades of grass, she clamps her front teeth together and pulls up a big clump. She grinds the grass with her back teeth, chewing her food twice like cows do.

Ruby is not alone. A little joey named Sunny pokes her head out from Ruby's pouch.

Sunny likes to explore outside her mother's pouch a little bit each day.

She hops down and lands on her lanky legs. Other little joeys join Sunny for a bit of roo play in the coolness of the evening.

A JOEY from DOWN UNDER

A young joey kangaroo named Sunny is always looking for ways to beat the summer heat. One day, when a pack of dingoes come sniffing around, she and her friend Yindy get separated from the rest of the mob. They meet many new mates along the way, but will they find their way back home to their mothers?

